Fund Objective

The Herald Worldwide Technology Fund (HWTF) is an Open Ended Investment Company (OEIC) that seeks to achieve capital growth, in excess of the average, by investing in quoted companies in the technology, communications and multi-media sectors. As its name suggests, the Fund invests in companies worldwide, but especially North America and the UK.

Fund Manager Comment

The US/China tariff spat and the blocking of Huawei's trade with the US were the prime upsets for the market. Xilinx was one of the worst hit, as suppliers to Huawei. It is difficult to see an easy resolution to this one, because both the electorate and the Democrats seem inclined to support a tough stance. Apple and Micron Technology were also in the firing line for a correction. The strong rally from the beginning of the year meant the market was ready for a correction. The bright spark was Atlassian following a number of positive analyst recommendations. Fortunately the price has quadrupled since purchase.
