Important Information

Please note that past performance is not a reliable indicator of future returns. Market and currency movements may cause the value of shares, and the income from them, to fall as well as rise, and you may get back less than you invested when you decide to sell your shares. Certain statements in this report constitute 'forward-looking' statements. Such statements, including the intended actions and performance objectives of the Fund, involve unknown risks, uncertainties and other factors which may cause actual results, performance or achievements of the Fund to differ materially from those implied by such forward-looking statements.

Any opinion expressed whether in general or specifically on the performance of individual securities and/or in a wider economic context represents the investment managers views at the time of preparation. Prospective shareholders should not treat this factsheet as advice relating to legal, taxation, investment or any other matters and are recommended to consult their own professional advisers concerning the acquisition, holding or disposal of shares in the Fund.

This factsheet has been issued and approved by Herald Investment Management Ltd, the investment manager, which is authorised and regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority.

Fund Information

Fund Manager Comment

The Fund continued to perform strongly in February. The largest contributors to performance were Super Micro Computer (SMCI) (+65%), Advanced Micro Devices (+16%), and Amazon (+15%). All three continued to benefit from the demand for datacentre capacity and infrastructure to support AI applications. We have been taking profits in SMCI as the valuation has approached our expectations. The most significant detractors from performance were Teradata Corp (-18%), Dynatrace (-13%), and Five9 (-19%). All three should be beneficiaries of the move to cloud-based architectures and AI. However, both Teradata and Five9 need to demonstrate that opportunities created by Generative AI and Large Language Models, outweigh potential headwinds to their existing businesses which rely on more traditional machine learning.
